Biography: Armand has been a freelance site crew member since late 2015. As a team member, Armand only gives 100% and is as hard working as they come. He is a great, patient listener and is very adaptive in changing environments. He gives the utmost respect to any and every team member. He is willing and eager to learn new skills and positions on the fly.

Armand Daigle received undergraduate degrees in Nuclear Engineering and Mechanical Engineering from The Pennsylvania State University in 2007 and worked as an MEP consulting engineer for the next five years. From 2012 to 2016, he worked a development producer, writer, production manager, videographer, actor, and production assistant for Lobo Sudio Creative - a film production company in Austin, TX. While freelancing in the festival and event world, he freelances in the film industry.
