

bill back

an accounting term in which one department assumes financial responsibility for a particular expense on behalf of the client and then bills back that cost to the client after the event. It can also involve one department accepting responsibility for an expense shared by multiple departments, and then allocating a percentage of the total cost back to each department after the event.