

carrying production

refers to when an artist is bringing their own backline, PA system, lighting, staging, or any combination therein. Often an event will have to balance what the artist is bringing in with what they need to provide (i.e., many festivals will supply a stage, sound, and lights for all artists but some may carry extra production in the form of a lighting floor package, IEMs, their preferred audio consoles, or their own backline).