

IEMs

short for “in ear monitors”, these are systems that some bands (and other performers, like chefs) will utilize as they provide a more intimate level of monitoring their performance since they will only hear exactly what they want to hear without any peripheral noise. Most IEMs are wireless, which means the frequencies they use must be clear (not already in use by other wireless networks).